

Bio – Jim DeVaul

James (Jim) DeVaul is a partner in KPMG's Federal Government Advisory Services practice located in Washington, DC. With over 24 years of experience, Jim is the lead partner for KPMG's Federal IT Audit and Attestation services, which included developing, assisting and leading IT security and compliance attestation and advisory engagements for federal government and commercial entities. Jim's engagements have included SAS 70 examinations (SSAE No. 16), Federal Information Security Management Act (FISMA) independent assessments, SAS 70 examinations, compliance audits, and IT audits conducted in accordance with the Federal Information System Control Audit Manual (FISCAM). Jim's federal government engagements have focused on compliance with NIST standards and guidance, OMB Circulars A-123, A-127, and A-130, and DOD security requirements. He has served numerous federal clients with large, complex operating environments, including the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, General Service Administration, Department of Treasury, Department of Justice, Department of Defense, Department of Interior, Department of Labor, and others. Jim is also the lead partner for the Federal Practice Information Protection Services group that conducts technical vulnerability assessments and penetrations tests.